“ Best Friend.

You taught me so much. You were always there to listen. I've cried on your shoulder. You've cried on mine. We've learned together. We've laughed together. We've screamed at each other. We've ignored each other. We've talked about everything under the sun. You showed me how to be okay with being me. You've helped me remember what's important. You trusted me. I am honored to be able to say that. I trusted you. Every time you were in my presence, it's because you chose to be. That made it so much more special. You never really "needed" me. I always knew that. But you gave me the best spring of my life, this year. We watched the Strawberry moon rise over Pretty Place. That was the Solstice. Spring turned to Summer and you went on to bigger things. You have become the person who owns the building the chess game is played in. Six hundred and sixty six steps ahead. I will continue to spread your messages to the world around me. You never will become a memory. Landon Gallman, or should I say, Twelve.. you will always be alive to me. It's everywhere I look. The colors of the sunset. The moment I get lost in a good song. The reason I ask 'Why'. The wind blowing through trees. The people asking for advice. Your energy will continue to be present in all that I do. Thank you, more than words can ever express, for choosing to be in my life. You've enriched everything about it. Thank you, for being unapologetically you.

“ My baby boy you'll always be. Your beautiful smile. Your beautiful heart. Your intelligent mind. Your goofy grin. That thing you did with your eyebrow just made me smile. I will never be the same son. I love you so much.

“ Landon,
Things will never be the same. You were so loved by so many people. You spoke so highly of your sister and your "brother bear" I wanted to mention that. You believed in your loyalty to the ones you loved so much. Luke loves you and we all miss you so much. I will forever be sorry for this, and will continue to teach and spread the things you've taught me. You were so talented and brilliant. I think my favorite memory of us will be always when we were dancing around the fire listening to you your obscure music. I love you 12.
