“ Boyd was a good person. A quiet and honest, yet simple man that kept to himself and never had a bad word to say about anyone. He had a this charming smile about him that hid the fact that he usually knew more than what he said. I worked with Boyd at Ballenger Paving for many, many years. I always admired him for his mechanical abilities and skill. He could tear down and fix whatever was broken. Or, he could fabricate whatever we could dream up. After his retirement from Ballenger I would run into Boyd occasionally at the store where he played the scratch-off tickets and lottery. We had a deal, he where he was supposed to give me part of his winnings. It was a running inside joke. I will miss seeing my friend. I am sorry for his family's loss. Be comforted knowing that many people thought the world of Boyd. He truly was a good man.
