“ Aleshia, Dwayne, Rebecca, Caroline, Pheobe, Browie and the rest of family and friends: Losing a son has to be one of the most difficult things in the world. Cody was a very strong man and never chose to be an addict. He would've given anything to beat his addiction. Unfortunately it was stronger than him. I am not an expert, However, I have gone through the battles of a child to drug overdose, and I know I would take it away but it doesn't work that way. You didn't cause it, you can't control it and you can't cure it. The most important thing to remind yourself of all the great memories with Cody. I can see that blonde hair, bright eyes as a little boy that grew into a handsome man. Laugh at the good times, allow yourself to grieve and cry. Get angry, you will go through so many emotions and no 2 people grieve exactly the same. Talk about it, don't shut down. I'm here for you and the family to listen, hold your hands, pray for you and with you. Cody will be missed, he will always be in your hearts and you will always love him. May the grace of God be with you daily, May you feel the soft whispers of the angel wings giving you the assurance that Cody is out of harms way and Gods got this.

I love you.

You were not my son but yet you were...I watched you grow up for over 15 years into very handsome kind-hearted man...I watched you battle many many demons within those years...We talked about them so many times...Now son, you are finally FREE from all those demons...They no longer have a hold on you...GOD has a hold on you now...I will always love you Cody Brown & you will always be remembered in my heart...Now you can finally Rest In Peace*
