“ I am his oldest child. For over 30 years I had the blessing of knowing my dad. I will always be thankful for the good memories we had together. I am his spitting image in looks, sense of humor, hobbies, and personality. I will carry his laughter and his words of wisdom with me for the rest of my life. He is the only person that truly understood me and who never passed judgement on me during the rough patches I have went through as an adult. I hope he will always watch over me as my guardian angel and that what I make of myself in life will make him proud.

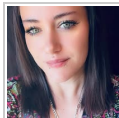

Thank you for being my daddy and for your unconditional love throughout the highs and the lows in my life. I love you so much. Until we meet again, daddy.

“ RIP Dax. Every time I hear the song "I Touch Myself" by the Divinyls, I always think back to Churchill's night club in the early 1990's. You used to own the dance floor when the DJ would spin that song. Rest easy my friend. Until we meet again.

“ My beautiful husband of 18 years, this Friday August 15 we would be married for 10 years. We were suppose to grow old together, you are my light, my safe place and my home. I know you’re not suffering anymore but my heart is torn into pieces because I lost my best friend, my soul mate my everything. I’m going miss your beautiful cheesy smile, your sense of humor, you playing the guitar and singing, you will always be my everything my 1 true love! Rest Easy my love until we meet again times are going be hard but I’m going try stay strong for our daughter. Please watch over us and guide us through this difficult journey without you. I know you are here in spirit, you will and forever be loved and missed dearly. Love you my love ❤️

“ Dax, my childhood friend—so many laughs while our dads tinkered with their latest inventions. We dreamed big and planned our escapes. Fly high, now. Rest in peace.
