“ When I was a young engineer with a big family, I moved from Idaho to the DC area where Susan and Don were living at the time. I was desperate to save money on housing, and left my family behind in Idaho, while I started my new job and looked for a place we could afford in DC. Though recently married and still in their “honeymoon” phase, they opened their small home to me, and I slept on their couch for several weeks. Their accommodation greatly eased my transition during a tumultuous time, and I will forever be grateful for their unstinting kindness. Brian

“ Don was The Rememberer. Anytime we had a question about when a child was born, or who came for Christmas in 2010, Don could recall every detail and name every name.

When he told of his growing up in North Carolina, the hardships and the beauty of those old times came to life for us. He was also a dancer and teacher of dance for many years as the photos will attest. He was a gentle and loving soul. I'm sending virtual hugs to all his family, especially my sister, Susan.

Susan, My deepest sympathies in Don's passing. How well I remember the days of dance lessons and dances we attended with the two of you! It was always a joy to spend time with both of you. Kathryn Cannon

“ I remember how Don’s beautiful blue eyes would brim with tears as he spoke of his childhood, his parents, his favorite brother. He was an unabashedly sentimental man and I loved that about him. The sentiment and affection also showed toward his children, Laura and Ben, and his loving wife, my sister Susan.
