“ A chain of amazing coincidences (if you believe that’s all they are) led to us learning of Doris Robson’s passing. Mrs Robson was my (and my brother’s) childminder when I was in elementary school in Upland, California. She was undoubtedly influential in my eventual move to England, planting an early Anglophile seed. We wish we’d known she was recently living in the next town to my mother in South Carolina! I’m glad my mother, Mary Lou Huntoon, could get to the memorial service.

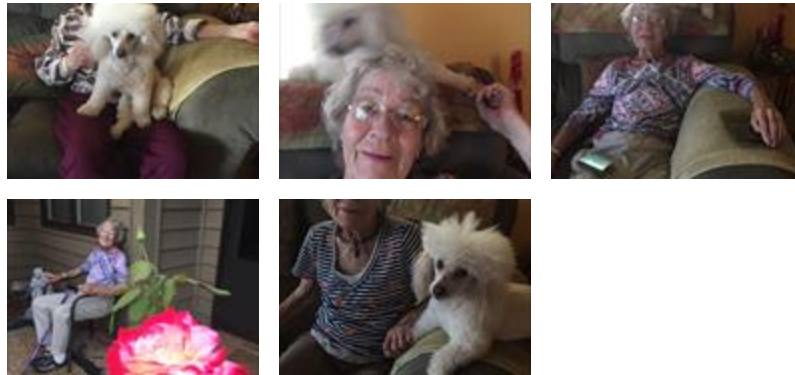

Our condolences to the family and remembering Mrs Robson with great affection.
