“ Duffie was my partner in crime when we worked at Franklin Dyed Yarns. She then married my cousin James and we continued to make memories for a while after. We some how drifted apart over the next few years and I had not seen her for many years but the friendship we had shared was always present in my heart. I loved that woman very much and I am so sorry that I did not make it to visit with her before she passed. She will forever be missed but never forgotten. Go rest high on that mountain Duffie.

Mama talked about you all the time. Some of the stories she told about y'all's shenanigans used to keep me laughing. Just know she cherished your friendship as well. ❤️❤️❤️
