“ I did not know any of this until yesterday. I had not been in contact with him for months, due to work and my personal life. He was Avery direct person and we would annoy each other so much, I was certain he blocked me. I googled his name and found out the news. I knew him since 2018, he made stuff for me years ago that I don't have anymore and I wish I still had them. He was very skilled in his craft. I wish I had talked to him more often before I found out everything. I'll always remember him showing me his world on Minecraft, he made a replica of his house and neighborhood. And he told me about putting mayonnaise on a grilled cheese instead of butter to fry it, that's how I always make it now. He had a big heart deep down, and very intelligent. I always thought of him when I heard about South Carolina on the news. We were always honest with each other, we were like bickering siblings most of the time, and I can't find anyone else like that now. He was truly unique.

“ Erik was my good friend. We talked through Instagram every single day for two years. He was such a good person. He had a big heart. He would send me wooden cut outs from his workshop and I will cherish them even more now. I miss him so much and I keep seeing things that I want to send him, but he's not there to see him and it breaks my heart. My condolences to his family and his other friends who are grieving his loss. Erik was truly a wonderful person and I will always remember him.
