“ I loved to see Grandpa with my kids! We would visit anytime we were in town. When my daughter, Natalie, was about 9 months old, we visited and he reminded me that she was my main job right now. He said he never thought he would have a Texan in the family and was sure proud to have her as a great granddaughter! He also never called my son by his name, Camden, but referred to him as Tex! He loved Texas and had lots of good stories from his adventures there! One time when we were visiting, my son started to pitch a fit and Grandpa said, "Well that's just the Texan in him!" Loved his sense of humor! He was a good Grandpa and Great Grandpa to us always!

“ I remember Mr. Brown from growing up in San Diego. I picture him mostly when he came home from work in his uniform. The one thing I admired the most about him was when he defended Alan by confronting some blockhead on Lindberg Street with his shotgun for threatening to call the police on Alan for hunting with his BB gun too close to their home alongside the canyon. Those were the good old days. I wish I could go back.
