“It's taken me a long time to find myself coming here and writing something that I feel worthy enough. This is by far the hardest thing I've ever experienced in my life. It's chest clenching to realize I'm never going to see you again on earth. My papa, Jack Valentine was the best papa anyone could ever had asked for. The most unselfish, caring, giving, loving papa there could ever be. He was like my second dad. I spent enough time with him for him to be. To have known papa was to love him. His radiant smile that could always light up a room. His words of encouragement to always do your best. He'd give you his last dime and the shirt off his back. He was there for all the greatest meanings of my life. My papa also treated my daughter just as special. Unfortunately he was three months shy of meeting my son. Which I named jaxson in honor of him. I don't think my son realizes what a great man and name he has to live up to. He was more than just a papa to me, he was everything a person could ever ask for as special as this to be in their lives. Even though he's not physically here to see us continue to grow I know he still watches over us. It still doesn't seem real. My world seems to stop when it sinks in he's not coming back. I try to imagine he's hunting, out cutting someone's grass, or out in his garage. He never slowed down. Always such a hard worker. You could ask him to do anything and he would jump to it. My grandma loves him as much today as when she first met him. Papa, she misses you and she loves you. All she does is talk of you, cry over you, and laugh when she shares happy memories of your life together. No one can ever replace you. Things will never be the same. I count the days till I see that smile of yours again. I miss you more than any words can ever say. I will always be a papa's girl. It's just not the same with you gone and the world lost something very special when you left. As I've always said to you, "you know how much I love you right?" And your response of "yes I do" then you would ask me the same. I hold onto every memory, every I love you, every hug, and every talk. I will always cherish you. I will always make sure my kids realize how much you love them. And I will always hold you in my heart. You weren't just my papa, you were my hero. Thank you for the laughs, tears, and the memories. I hate they had to end so soon, because I will always want more. I am just thankful for all the times we shared. I love you papa so much and I will see you before you know it. "Until then I love you, and I'll see you later." Love, Ashlie

“ A lot of people knew him as Jack but I called him Daddy. And Friday we not only lost a wonderful man but, I lost the best friend I ever had. He was my inspiration, my best buddy, my fishing buddy, my biggest fan, my heart and soul, and most of all my hero. He never failed me, he always had my back whether I was wrong or right. He would just set me straight later. And I want him to know that I love him and he will forever live in heaven, and in my heart and soul. I can't wait to see you again. I love and miss you. Hats off to the greatest man I have ever known, my super man and my Daddy.

“ *Jack, you will greatly be missed. You were a outstanding person , a outstanding neighbor and a person that I considered a true friend.
There were many a time that I came by and talked with you while you helped me with a lawn mower of mine that didn't want to act right. I respected you as a person and a person that I could count on. I know you are now celebrating in a much better place. I will miss you my friend and neighbor. - David Davis*
