“ Miss you Jay idk why it posted these two things but maybe your trying to make us all laugh and messing with my phone but also maybe encouraging the folk remedy I did for my lungs I was sick with pneumonia for 3 and a half months of I hasn't of used this regimen I don't think I would of been okay. I love you though and I miss you everyday big hugs 🤗🤗

Edgar Cayce Quotes:
"What we would give that the birds begin inhaling the fumes from pure apple brandy in a charred oak keg. Put half a gallon of pure apple brandy in at least a gallon or a gallon and a half of charred keg... In each hour or three times a day inhale these fumes into the lungs, blowing out through the nostrils when it is practical. Keep the keg in a warm place so that evaporation may occur easily... Do this and it will change these activities in the lungs that once in a while do break through. Use these fumes regularly." Edgar Cayce
"The activity on this is not only for the destruction of live tubercule tissue, but it acts as an antiseptic for all irritated areas, also giving activity to cellular force of the composite"

“ Just still so shocked over this. Jessica was funny, generous, loving, and so friendly. She had become a part of our family. This world is dimmer without her in it. We are so very deeply sorry for your loss. Our thoughts and our prayers are with you. -The Regniers

“ I met Jessica when I went to worked at outback & she was literally the only coworker there that helped me & would go out of her way to push me to stay positive. Her kind heart radiated through her smile & laugh. Shes one of the kindest people I've had the pleasure of knowing! Last time I saw her she was begging me to come to church with her & told me she loved it so much it had changed her life ❤️ she will be missed by many people. Prayers to her family friends & Charity

“ I miss her already and I've never met her in person. She is mom to my nephew's son, Nova, and perfect for him. I was grateful to her from the beginning, for being what every mom should be: stable, supportive, fun, in love with him. I was thrilled to see she had met what has to be an amazing woman, Charity, and admired every photo of the love they shared with each other and their two kids.

I will miss her frequent Facebook photos, almost always with the kids or Charity, with that look on her face that said, "Today is the best day ever!!" I checked very regularly on Facebook, at her invitation, to see the latest about Nova, leaving me with something new to smile about. I also checked in and smiled about all the good times in her growing family unit: trips, school, professional kiddo photos, baseball, martial arts, gymnastics, breakfasts, trips, fun with family and friends, birthdays, work, nieces and nephews, the engagement on the beach, the new house, Christmas and all holidays, trips, Happy Monday and Happy Friday car shots on the ride to or from work. It brightened my day, and made me feel a part of Nova's life, even though I've only met HIM about four times. I felt included and connected to her and Nova and her family. I will miss IMing with her through Facebook messenger: sometimes to catch up, sometimes for birthday and Christmas ideas but also to continue a connection of respect and admiration for each other. We had some things in common - she made it easy.

She and her family invited my nephew Greg to family functions, giving him a second family away from his hometown in Ohio, a place to be with people who love Nova as much as Greg does. She even joined us Ballingers on a Zoom call for Christmas in 2020, and she laughed at all our dumb Ballinger jokes and stories and told us some of hers. We loved her, she was an honorary Ballinger after that call. She invited us to visit, there's always a room waiting for us, she said. My family is heartbroken and helpless to know what to do, how to help, so far away but devastated for her family and Nova and Greg. And for ourselves too. She was amazing to leave this big grief, and yet we've never met.
