“ You wanted 12 kids. And while you didn't exactly get your wish, you got #5, and that was me. You also got my baby sister, who was #6 and the grand finale.

Dad, I'm so thankful for your big vision and foolhardy spirit. If you hadn't begged Mom for another child, I wouldn't be here today. And while you would have liked to have had another boy, you never seemed disappointed in me.

I will never forget our last conversation before you left this earth. It was Father's Day. Although it was very difficult for you to express sentiment, having been raised on a farm in the Midwest, you responded to my, "Thank you for being my dad," with, "No. Thank you... for who you are."

I said, "I love you," and you, breathlessly, but confidently responded, "I. Love. YOU."

*I will never forget you, Dad. The memories are flooding me today. Miss you so much already!

“ Myron was a wonderful man. Loved his family and liked to share the information with others. His Christmas letters were always filled with a lot of family history and love. Fun to talk to. Glad he was in my family, since he was married to my cousin. May all of you find Peace knowing that he is at Home and at Peace now.

With much sympathy and love, Cora
