“ Grandmother, you taught me how to laugh and how take a joke. Your life was full of laughter and love. You always had open arms for me and I always felt I had a place in your heart. Now you have gone home. I know you haven't left us, but just gone on a little before us. I will see you soon and you will have to show me where the spicket is in heaven. Until then, my memories of our times together will keep me going. I love you!
