“ I have been a lifelong friend of Stephanie, from first grade, all the way until we graduated high school together, then Stephanie married my first cousin. My first memories of Pierce are when he was probably 4 or 5 years old. As little brother's do, he chased us girls around the house in his underwear, then as he got older, around the neighborhood. Every where we went, he wanted to go. He loved to try and freak us out with the frog he found outside or chase us when he was covered in mud and make us scream. I'd spend the night at The Gambrell's a lot in the summer. I was an only child so I thought spending time there was like going to a party. I watched Pierce grow into a fine young man, always kind, friendly and would mostly leave you with a smile or laugh. I attended his wedding, then was tickled to hear he had a son. I see pictures of Nicholas now and he favors his dad so much when he was his age, and when I saw them together, they seemed like two peas in a pod. It is obvious how much they adored each other. My heart broke to see Stephanie and Pierce lose their Dad, now my heart breaks even more to see young Nicholas lose Pierce. I feel pretty sure Pierce is kicked back in a hammock, by a river cascading down a mountain, proudly telling all his loved ones in Heaven all about Nicholas and thanking Larry for showing him how to be a good Dad.
RIP my friend. See you later.

“ I worked with Pierce for a short time, and wow did he make each day easier than the last. He was always singing, smiling, happy, talking with others, listening to others, and thinking about others. He was focused, hard working, considerate, thoughtful, and honest. He loved Zelda, and would always talk about his son and his growing love for Zelda. I hope that the RC car he received for Christmas puts future smiles on his face. We will all deeply miss Pierce, and we will remember him in little moments throughout the day! What a fantastic blessing to share just a few months with Pierce! How lucky am I?

“ No matter who asked Pierce to do something he never forgot and always did what was asked of him. He truly had the biggest heart. He was kind and gentle, with the nicest manners. Although life threw him curve balls he rebounded gracefully. RIP Pierce
