“ I just found out about Sally. She was my best friend when we were kids. We'd ride our bikes everywhere together and I went to Sunday School with her. She rode to school with me every day and had breakfast with us. She loved my mother's cooking. We played with our Ginny dolls and made clothes for them. Sally should have been a designer - she was extremely talented -had a flare for fashion even when we were children. We drove the neighbors crazy playing on our old player piano and singing to the top of our lungs. Sally seemed to love everyone and never had a bad word to say about anyone. She was very forgiving and an extremely talented artist. She sent me the following for her bio: 2 Children, 1 grandson; BS Penn State; testified at Watergate; offered position at President Ford's White House; buyer; commissioned artist; travel; volunteer battered women's shelter. I thought she'd like everyone to know these things so am sharing them with you.

I would like to also extend my deepest sympathy to Sally's family and closest friends. She is truly going to be missed.

Love Always,

Jeanne "Garner" Weaver

“ Dear Tracy,
As saddened as I am by your loss, I am so grateful that your mom gave birth to you, my friend. Healing moves at its own pace. Be kind to yourself and take it one day at a time. I know your heart is aching and I am here for you. I am truly sorry for your loss.
Love,
