“ Steve represented one of the young church families which was always present for services or outreach. He literally helped build the church along with other men who gave as well as helped construct the building. He was a builder and molder of men as well through his example. He was humble, kind, generous, and loving. Most of all, he influenced others by his strong faith and faithfulness to what he believed. We will miss you in this life, Steve, but look forward to seeing you again in the next.
