“ Though I did not have the pleasure of knowing her personally, I know her daughter and have heard wonderful things about her. It’s clear she was an extraordinary woman—one who taught her children love, empathy, and compassion, shaping them into genuinely good humans. I am comforted to know she is no longer suffering, and I admire the strength and resilience of her family during this time. My heartfelt condolences to all who loved her.

“ Aunt Wanda has always been there my whole life. I admire her strength and bravery up until the final moments. That kind of bravery is rare in this world. Me and her daughter Meghan grew up together, and I'll always have such fond memories of all those years of childhood in Nanny's house together. Reminiscing on holidays with family makes me want one of Wanda's peanut butter balls. She will be so incredibly missed and is dearly loved by many. Wearing red today for you, sweet lady.

“ So many memories of our sweet Wanda, but one of my favorites is her taking us trick or treating one year. For some reason, we weren't going to go so I didn't have a costume. She helped me make one out of a garbage bag. She drove us around to family and friends houses for candy. One friend of hers didn't have any candy so he gave us all a dollar. A dollar was a big deal then. Wanda was one of the strongest women I have ever known. Always had a smile even when times were hard and not one to complain but found a reason to laugh, instead. She was not only our aunt, but a friend to all. One you could call to talk about nothing but talk for hours. She is loved and will be missed.
